

Manufacturer Ranking by Pounds Recycled in 2010

Starting in 2008, manufacturers of covered electronic devices (CEDs) sold in the state of Hawaii were subject to the Hawaii Electronic Waste and Television Recycling and Recovery Law. CEDs are defined as: computers, computer monitors, printers, and portable computers. By January 1, 2010, CED manufacturers were required to have recycling programs established in the state of Hawaii for their brand(s) of CEDs.

Manufacturers were required to report the total pounds of covered electronic devices (CEDs) recycled in 2010 for the state of Hawaii. It was reported that 3,235,432 pounds of e-waste was recycled in Hawaii. However, the 3,235,432 pounds of e-waste recycled includes other types of e-waste (TVs, keyboards, mice, etc.) in addition to CEDs. Table 1 provides the ranking of manufacturers by pounds recycled.

Apple Inc. is responsible for recycling 63% of all e-waste recycled by manufacturers in 2010. Apple sponsored a four-day collection event on the islands of Kauai, Oahu, Maui, and Hawaii in October 2010. Apple is the only manufacturer that provided collections on all four islands (Kauai, Oahu, Maui, and Hawaii). In addition, Apple accepted all types and brands of e-waste.

Of the 41 CED manufacturers registered with the state of Hawaii for 2010, 20 manufacturers recycled zero (0) pounds. Manufacturers that did not recycle any CEDs for 2010 are listed alphabetically in Table 2.

The information presented in this document includes only the e-waste recycled by manufacturer programs. Many manufacturer-sponsored recycling programs are not convenient to all residents of Hawaii, which meant that some counties continued to provide their own recycling programs.

In 2010, the US Census Bureau reported Hawaii's population as 1,360,301, which equals 2.38 pounds of e-waste recycled per person by manufacturer-sponsored recycling programs. This is in contrast to e-waste recycling programs in Oregon (6.30 pounds/person) and Washington (5.87 pounds/person).*
